21.21 RUSSIAN GARRISON: The Russian garrison consists of the total of the Russian:

A. Active armor, infantry and air units (one for each unit);

B. Research and production result counters (one for each counter); and

C. Russian flags in minor countries:

- One if Russia has one or two flags in the minor country.
- Two if Russia has a trade pact in the minor country.

21.22 RUSSIAN GARRISON REQUIREMENT: The Russian garrison is compared to the total of:

A. The Japanese forces in Manchuria (two armor, three infantry and three air units, for a total of eight). This Siberian garrison requirement never changes.

B. The net Axis armor, infantry and air balance of power advantages (one for each balance of power advantage). An Axis superiority in one of these categories may be offset an Allied superiority in another category. The Axis-Allied naval balance of power is ignored.

C. The European Aggression Index (one for each positive EAI). A zero or negative EAI has no effect.

D. Axis or Allied flags in minor countries bordering Russia:

- Poland:
  - One if the Axis or Allies have one or two flags in Poland.
  - Two if the Axis or Allies have a trade pact with Poland.
- Other minor countries: One for each Axis or Allied trade pact in Finland, Rumania or Turkey.

E. Occupation Policy research results (one for the first result; an additional two for the second result - 16.16E).
